The Twentieth Century Club

By Julia Morgan Harding

THE Twentieth Century Club reached its tenth milestone on May 5, and for reasons of convenience celebrated the anniversary on Saturday, May 14, an occasion of many mutual congratulations on a happy and successful decade. The history of the founding of the club was the most prominent feature of the decennial celebration program, read from the original minutes by Miss Anne S. Phillips who has been the faithful and efficient secretary of the club since its organization.

To many new members the story was a new one, to the older members it was a delightful reminiscence of the days when the corner-stone of a truly noble edifice was laid. Passing over the simple but impressive official record of the three first meetings of the organization, held at the Young Woman's Christian Association and in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church in the spring of 1894, a survey of the work done in ten years and the money expended for educational and other purposes gives the most gratifying results.

From a small beginning in a modestly furnished house in Penn avenue, with an annual membership due of $10, the club has grown in numbers and influence, and though its income has not kept pace with its development in other directions, the careful and wise expenditure of its yearly resources enables it to turn a brave face to the world and to carry out both in letter and spirit the objects for which it was chartered, of "creating an organized center for woman's work, thought and action, advancing her interests, promoting science, literature and art, and providing a quiet place of meeting for its members."

These purposes have been literally fulfilled to a degree that even many members of the club do not appreciate. Five different presidents have piloted the club through its ten years' journey, Mrs. George C. Burgwin, Mrs. Frank S. Bissell, Mrs. William N. Frew, Miss Harding and Mrs. George A. Gormly, the latter having had the privilege of presiding at the decennial meeting.

The financial interests of the club have been in most able keeping. Mrs. James R. Mellon was treasurer from the time of organization until February, 1903, when she handed over her office to Mrs. Samuel A. Ammon.

In the spring of 1898 the fine old mansion, 428 Duquesne Way, was leased from the Laughlin estate and handsomely furnished in a style in keeping with the colonial architecture of the house and its spacious rooms, and combining the formal stateliness of a clubhouse and the comforts of a private residence.

The committee to whose interest, taste and economical expenditure of the sum set apart for the furnishing of their house the club is indebted for a perfectly appointed home were Miss Mary L. Jackson, Mrs. Sellers McKee, Mrs. E. M. Ferguson, Mrs. Albert Childs, Mrs. George B. Gordon and Mrs. H. Allen McChesney.

In the work of promoting science, literature and art $14,328.94 has been expended by the club for lectures which have been given under these departments and to extend or awaken an interest in the various philanthropic works which the club has either founded or fostered.

It has been the unvarying comment of every distinguished lecturer who has spoken before the Twentieth Century Club that the audiences were the most intelligent, the most appreciative and the most inspiring they have ever addressed. This, however, only partially represents the work done for the club by individual members who contributed papers during the years when department work was an experiment, who have presented topics for discussion on Monday mornings, taken part in informal debates and who have given assistance in starting and promoting philanthropic enterprises.

Under the heading of philanthropy, the club can point with ever growing pride and satisfaction to its foster children the joint committee on children's playgrounds and vacation schools and to the Western Pennsylvania branch of the Consumers' League. The Civic Club of Allegheny county originated within the wall of the Twentieth Century Club, though it soon passed out of its jurisdiction and influence. From time to time financial help has been extended to small clubs in other sections of the country who have asked for aid in founding traveling libraries, and a children's traveling library was given to Carnegie Institute.

Appropriations of money are yearly made to the joint committee, and on this decennial anniversary financial aid was extended to the Consumers' League, the Juvenile Court and the public baths committee, and gifts of money were also made to Tuskegee and to Atlanta University.

Rents have been placed within the means of many organizations which are thus enabled to hold their meetings in the most comfortable and agreeable surroundings, and the promise to make the club "a center for woman's thought, work and action" has been kept.

In ten years the club has expended in rents, repairs, furnishing, lectures, salaries, housekeeping expenses, postage, printing, entertainments and appropriations, $59,929.75. It begins its eleventh year with a neat little investment fund and a balance in its favor at the bank.

A more permanent home must some day be secured for the club, as its present location will soon be invaded by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and its great object must henceforth be to find and acquire an available and convenient place where its work can be continued with ever growing purpose and interest.

The club recognizes the obligations it is under to its officers and board of managers, not only for the variety and excellent quality of its lecture programs, which have covered the fields of art, science, literature, history, philanthropy, domestic arts and current topics, and for the wise management of its finances which have made all these good things possible, and to the chairmen and members of the lecture, house and entertainment committees, who, working under the executive board, have had charge of the countless details that the administration of a club on such a large scale entail, and have faithfully, conscientiously, and intelligently performed their work.

Since the organization of the club, house committees under the following chairmen have left a spotless record, and have made the neatness, cleanliness and perfect order of the club house a joy to all who entered it: Mrs. Charles A. Painter, Mrs. William Scott, Mrs. William J. Moorhead, Mrs. Charles B. McLean, Mrs. James A. Reed and Mrs. William Wallace. The chairmen of the lecture committees were: Miss Killikelly, Mrs. David Kirk, Mrs. James Gayley, Miss Harding, Miss McKnight, Miss Kennard, Mrs. Nicola and Miss Phillips. The chairmen of the entertainment committees were: Mrs. Arthur Holland, Mrs. George C. Burgwin, Mrs. John G. Holmes, Mrs. W. N. Frew, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Miss Jackson. The office of corresponding secretary has been held by Mrs. Charles W. Bassett, Mrs. James Gayley, Mrs. George Gormly, Mrs. F. F. Nicola, Mrs. Samuel A. Ammon, Miss Mary Y. Wheeler and Mrs. Samuel Grier.

It is safe to affirm that every member of the Twentieth Century Club who has served on its executive board or on any of its committees has been impressed by the spirit of harmony that has pervaded its councils and that has made all of its official meetings a pleasure to attend; and in reviewing the decade the perfect adjustment of the club machinery is perhaps the most gratifying as well as the most surprising phenomenon of a brilliant period. Club members who may perhaps have said they do not receive a sufficient return for their $15 annual dues, should pause and reflect. If the mental food and stimulus offered to them by lectures by the best talent to be had does not appeal to the intellectual side of their natures, if they are so happily constituted as not to need personal contact with other minds and other views of life and things, and if they do not find a downtown home a convenience, let them remember that their $15 helps to do a great work outside of their own personal needs. It helps to keep up a fine and dignified institution; it helps to keep up a standard of high thinking and altruistic action before the city of Pittsburg; it helps to provide a center for women's work in the various fields of philanthropy and education; it helps to extend the benefits and advantages which they think they do not need and do not enjoy to many others who do, and to whose lives they bring light and understanding; it helps to build up and support such splendid organizations as the Consumers' League, and the Joint Committee in charge of children's playgrounds and summer schools; it makes possible of realization the motto of the club: "Non nobis solum, sed toti mundo," (not for ourselves alone, but for all the world).

Club House Keeping

In the department of housekeeping and home making the Twentieth Century club has shewn herself past grand master.

When in the first summer of the club life, now ten years ago, having already a name, she sought for herself a local habitation and prepared to settle down, no one believed it possible that so large a venture could be accomplished with such ease and promptness. Number 408 Penn Avenue was rented, repaired, cleaned, furnished and ready for occupancy just three months after the club was fully organized. The novelty of a club with a government of the women, for the women, by the women provoked general comment, particularly from the club's male relatives, who predicted downfall and ruin, and waited somewhat impatiently with hand on purse strings, prepared to pay all deficits, could they but see their Cassandra like prophecies fulfilled. It is, however, always the unexpected that happens and the club grew and flourished so rapidly that the lecture room with its inconvenient double doors, proved totally inadequate for the size of the audiences gathered to hear Dr. Moulton and other lecturers, and it was decided to move to better and more commodious quarters. This time a large residence on Duquesne Way was selected, convenient to the shopping district and yet sufficiently retired to promise a respite from the ever increasing noise and confusion of our city, which continues to express herself immodestly in superlatives. This home with its lofty ceilings and large halls still echoing the hospitality of a previous generation, seemed perfectly suited for a club home, and lent itself admirably to its new and handsome furnishings, and the Twentieth Century club finds herself so delightfully comfortable that she suffers from attacks of heart failure when she looks into the future and sees Duquesne Way one great warehouse and trains of two elevated railroads rushing past her door.

The housekeeping of the club is a marvel not only to her members, but also to the visitors who come within her cheerful walls to enjoy rest and peace. Here is order and cleanliness in the midst of smoke and soot, and the household machinery gives neither creak nor groan, except when old Father Allegheny rises in wrath and threatens to submerge even the last step of the long ascent that leads to the club's hospitable halls. Then, and only then, are the doors of the Twentieth Century club closed to the busy brains and loving hearts of the women who, in the words of their motto, are striving "not for themselves alone, but also for others."

The Literary Work of the Twentieth Century Club of Allegheny County

Lectures and Classes

During the first ten years of the club's existence, its literary work had been developed by means of classes and lectures, but as a desire for more regular and definite work was manifested, it was decided to try departmental work. Departments were arranged to meet bi-monthly and to be under the leadership of a club member, who would prepare a course of study to be carried out by club members, supplemented by lecturers who should be noted in their different professions.

Five departments were organized: Current Topics, Literature and History, Sociology, Art and the Home. The Departmental movement met at first with enthusiasm, but as the disposition of the majority of the club members was to listen, rather than to take an active part in the work, it was decided, after two years' trial, to abandon departmental work and to again take up broader questions and views as advanced by noted teachers and lecturers. The Current Events Class alone was continued. It was organized and ably conducted by Mrs. Charles W. Bassett. On her retirement the class was conducted by different members of the club, but this proved unsatisfactory and Miss Harding was induced to take charge of the class. Under her direction it has been conducted so wisely and so impartially that it has become the keystone of the literary life of the club.

From 1894 until the present decennial year, the club has had the advantage of the best talent procurable on all questions that would interest and instruct its members.

The lectures have been given by the following people, some of them the most distinguished in their several lines: Courses of lectures by Herr Skalweit, Prof. Wilbur Cross, of Yale; John C. VanDyke, Denton J. Snyder, Ernest Fenellosa, Mrs. David Kirk, Mrs. Vermorcken, Miss Mary Anna Green, Miss Harding, Dr. Richard G. Moulton, Thomas W. Philanthropies

In its philanthropic interests the Twentieth Century Club has been truly representative of Pittsburgh. All movements for social and civic betterment have had its hearty sympathy and many have originated within its membership. The policy of the club has never been to incorporate these interests within its own organization, but rather to encourage their independence and reliance upon the public for support.

From the Twentieth Century Club in 1895, came the plan for a Civic Club of Allegheny County. A few years later the Domestic Arts Association received its most efficient aid from the same source. In 1900 our President called together the Presidents of other prominent women's clubs to form the Joint Committee for Children's Playgrounds. In 1902 the Juvenile Court was initiated in Western Pennsylvania through the efforts of our Corresponding Secretary. The Permanent Civic Committee was organized within our walls. The Consumers' League calls the Twentieth Century Club its home, and all of these various organizations have held regular or occasional meetings in the club house. Twice have its hospitable doors been opened to the western division of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Women's Clubs, and once to the International Congress of Mothers.

In its gifts of money the Twentieth Century Club has been both generous and judicious. It has assisted three western clubs to establish libraries in their respective towns, and has given two home libraries to the children of Pittsburgh. Again and again have charitable, educational or patriotic institutions received contributions from its treasury, and the tenth anniversary of the Club was appropriately celebrated by liberal gifts to the Juvenile Court, Consumers' League and Children's Playgrounds, and to Tuskegee and Atlanta Universities.

The Club has always had a broad public spirit. It responded most cordially to the request of the Chamber of Commerce for aid in creating sentiment for a Greater Pittsburgh. It gave aid and encouragement to the Daughters of the American Revolution in their heroic efforts to preserve for Pittsburgh its historic Block House, and in many other ways has shown its interest in the welfare of the city.

Yet in spite of its breadth of view, the Club is sober and conservative in method and does not forget that it is a woman's club, founded and maintained for the pleasure and profit of its own members and of the women of Allegheny County.

BEULAH ELFRETH KENNARD.

Entertainment of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women

Early in the life of our Club, our President, Mrs. George C. Burgwin, was called to Philadelphia to assist in organizing a State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Owing to the prominence of the Twentieth Century Club in furthering this progressive movement, it was eminently fitting that the Federation should be invited to hold the fourth annual meeting in Pittsburgh, as the guests of our Club.

The arrangements were carefully planned and executed, and the result was one of the most brilliant and successful meetings ever held by the State Federation. There were about one hundred and eighty delegates in attendance, all of whom were entertained either in hotels or private houses.

The meetings were held in Carnegie Hall, and were all well attended, not only by club members, but also by the general public, who took a deep and intelligent interest in the proceedings. The evening meetings were especially brilliant, and the audiences enthusiastic.

A large afternoon reception was held at our Club House, and an evening reception—immediately following the opening meeting—in Carnegie Art Gallery.

The cost of entertaining this large convention amounted to about $1,090.00, all of which was paid from the Club treasury, with some additional contributions from individual members. No assessment on individual members was made.

The record made by this beautiful and hospitable entertainment of a large body of progressive women is unique, and one of which we may well be proud. The results have been far-reaching. A better knowledge of the advancement and importance of our great city was in this way disseminated among the women of our State, and the noble hospitality extended, and accepted at that time, has strengthened the tie binding all together in progressive efforts for the welfare of humanity in ameliorating the conditions affecting childhood, elevating the status of womanhood, and raising the standard of true citizenship in this commonwealth.

KATE CASSATT MCKNIGHT.

Social Life

In the construction of the Club no emphasis is laid on social features, but as no history of an individual life would be complete without some account of its social habits, so no history of the Club would suffice without some mention of her social life.

The Presidents' receptions, held in the autumn before the announcement of the winter's program, have the charm of bringing together friends, old and new, to greet the officers elected the previous May.

The luncheon on Election Day has proved a great success, and the opportunity of remaining to talk things over has added much to the well being of the Club and has robbed the occasion of its perfunctory character.

The Whist Club meetings on Thursdays have been held for years, and are well attended, while many who are not whist players drop in for the tea served later in the afternoon. Many women who have come to Pittsburgh from other places have found these gatherings delightful and have spoken again and again of their enjoyment, this being perhaps their only social life in a city where they were entire strangers.

Club functions differ necessarily from the same affairs in private houses. The Society reporter is hard pushed for material, the decorations are simple and the motto "Plain living and high thinking," would be more applicable here than in most modern entertainments. There is less of what some one has aptly termed "pink-peppermint hospitality," but more of that true hospitality which springs from a desire to honor an honored guest or the pleasure of meeting pleasant people.

The largest and best attended of the Club's entertainments are those given to distinguished strangers. Some of these are almost ancient history now, but who that had the pleasure, will ever forget meeting Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson, Mrs. Henrotin, Miss Whittier, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Todd, Mrs. DeLand, Miss Repplier or Mrs. Julia Ward Howe? Not only famous women but also famous men have been the Club's guests. Mr. Joseph Jefferson, Dr. Hamilton Mabie, Mr. Walter Shirlaw and Dr. Henry Van Dyke have all honored us with their presence. One may name and describe the flowers of a bouquet without being able to give any idea of its fragrance, and so it is with meeting these delightful people. One may tell their names, but the charm of their personalities cannot be described.

The Club has never been backward in showing hospitality to other organizations when meeting in Pittsburgh. The delegates to the Mothers' Congress were entertained, and who will ever forget the time the Club was hostess to the Federation of Pennsylvania Women! Not the chairman of the Committee on Hospitality, whose mail grew so large that Sewickley almost had to have an Assistant Postmaster and whose genius provided several hundred women with exactly the sort of accommodations each wanted, after she had exercised her feminine privilege of changing her mind several times! Not the President of the Club, who hardly slept for four months, trying to compose a speech of welcome, whose "nights brought council" to resign the Presidency, but whose courage managed to hold out until the fatal day? All this is past and gone, but the pleasure lingers still.

The evolution of the great city in which we live may force the Club to leave her pleasant quarters, and perhaps in the change the social side of the Club may find new life in the addition of a restaurant, but be this as it may, whether her scope is enlarged or the even tenor of her way be maintained, the members of the Twentieth Century Club can look back with sincerest pleasure to the days spent within her walls.
